Just kidding. This is all a hoax to trap the gullible. Nobody gets paid by any governments to post videos because the earth is not flat. There's no need for anybody to pay anyone to claim the earth is spherical when it's already known to be spherical. If you believed this hoax, you should reconsider how you analyze information.

Office of Strategic Influence is actually a progressive metal band. Check them out, they're pretty good. We also chose the name because there used to be a DOD department by that name that was closed around 2002. Gullible people are prone to think the department is still in existence even lacking evidence.

Kind Regards,

Cryptographically secure message digest verification instructions:

Copy all the text between "Information effective January 1, 2019" and "End cryptographically secure message digest with this line", inclusive. Exclude header and footer text. Collapse three or more new lines to 2 new lines. Beginning with the letter "I" in "Information effective January 1, 2019" and ending with the final "e" in "End cryptographically secure message digest with this line". Paste this as plain text into a cryptographic message digest calculator of your choice or the one listed below. Algorithm 1 is "SHA-256", algorithm 2 is "SHA3-256", algorithm 3 is "Skein-512-256". A video detailing how to do this has been posted on MCToon's YouTube account titled "Verifying Hoax OSI Document".
